Local businesses power Canada's economy

In rural and remote communities, access to financing can be more limited, making growth harder to achieve.

BDC and The Réseau des SADC et CAE came together to change that by expanding access to financing and advice, unlocking growth where it's often overlooked.

How it works

This financing solution is designed from the ground up to be simple, local and entrepreneur-first.

- ➔ One point of contact—Apply through your local SADC et CAE office, who will guide you every step of the way—from application to repayment.
- ➔ Greater financing—Eligible loans can reach up to $500,000*.
- ➔ Shared risk—BDC participates in 50% of eligible loans through a loan participation structure.
- ➔ More than financing—Through the partnership, entrepreneurs get access to ongoing support and capacity-building resources, including online tools and learning opportunities.

Who can apply?

The loan is designed for entrepreneurs and business owners in rural or remote Canadian communities at every stage, including start-ups and established businesses.

It's a good fit if the objective is to:

- ➔ Start, grow, or strengthen a business's operations
- ➔ Modernize equipment and technologies, develop new products, access new markets, scale operations, and innovate to support growth
- ➔ Invest in initiatives that strengthen business resilience and promote sustainable growth
